
Reputations move among the values used in the original experiments. Both policies were computed earlier and stay fixed during simulation.