

Smoothed panels: trailing average of up to 100 periods, with shorter windows at the start. Initial periods are included.
Shading: pointwise 95% confidence intervals across simulations, keeping periods within each simulation together.
Dashed lines: product 2 frequency calculated from each policy's saved joint stationary distribution.